S. Eliot Breezeblocks is a song by British indie rock band Alt J. Single is part of their debut album, An Awesome Wave. They released the album on May 28, 2012 and featured another important hit, Matilda/Fitzpleasure. This helped them win the British Mercury Award and nominations at the BRIT Awards for British Album Of The Year, British Group Of The Year and British Breakthrough Act. He also won the Ivor Novello Award for Album of the Year, and many of his singles appeared on Triple J Hottest 100, 2012. Breezeblocks was recorded in 2011 and was released for digital download the following year, on 18 October 2015. The song features a variety of musical genres, as a mix of indie rock, experimental rock and art rock. Produced by Charlie Andrew and written and composed by Thom Green, Gus Unger Hamilton, Joe Newman and Gwilym Sainsbury. The whole band is responsible for the vocals. Part of Infectious Music, Breezeblocks reached important charts in the United States and other countries: it was number nine on American alternative songs, number 41 in Australia, number 75 on the UK Singles Chart and number six on the UK Indie Chart. Also, in 2012, the band embarked on a small concert tour across Ireland and the United Kingdom. It started at Dublin Academy and hit many summer festivals such as T In The Park, Latitude, Reading And Leeds, In The Woods Festival, Bestival, End Of The Road and many others. The music video for the single was directed by Ellis Bahl and featured performances by Eleonor Pienta, Jonathan Dwyer and Jessica DiGiovanni. It was the first music video in the band's existence. The video shows a man and woman brawling, shown in reverse. It was released on 23 March 2012 and received the UK Music Video Award as Best Alternative Video, in November 2012. The successful song was part of the band's breakthrough period. You can use the free piano sheet we provide and be part of Alt J's breakthrough experience. Formed by Joe Newman, for guitar and lead vocals, Cameron Knight, Thom Green, for drums, and Gus Unger Hamilton, for keyboards and vocals, the band hails from Leeds, England. The band approaches various musical genres on their work, including electronic, experimental rock, indie rock, folk rock, art rock and folktronica.
